WELL KNOWN RESIDENT SUMMONED.

Alonso Fallon Dies After a Long Illness--Funeral Conducted From His Home on Second Street. WAS NEARLY SIXTY-EIGHT.

Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock Alonso Fallon died at his home in this city. Mr. Fallon's death was expected and he was perfectly resigned to die. He had been ill nearly a year, but was confined to his room just six weeks. His preparation for death was so sincere and earnest, and when the end came it was peaceful and comforting to him.

Mr. Fallon was born in Hodgenville in May, 1842, and when a little boy his parents moved to Iowa. After their death, he returned to Kentucky and came here from Princeton, twenty years ago. He was a painter by trade and worked at that successfully until his health failed him.

In 1870 Mr. Fallon married Mrs. Harriett Pemberton, the widow of Chas. Pemberton. She and a family of grown children, who are splendid young people, survive. They are five sons: Messrs. Charles, Otto, Justin, Joe and Rollie Fallon, and one daughter, Miss Ola Fallon.

The funeral was held from the home Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Mr. Dillon, pastor of the Methodist church, who was a frequent visitor at the bedside of Mr. Fallon during his late illness. The Methodist church choir had charge of the music, and among the songs was his favorite, "Sweet By and By."

Many lovely floral designs were sent by neighbors and friends, and the interment took place in the Cloverport cemetery.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Wick Moorman, Chas. Hook, Thos. Tousey, Joe Fitch, J. C. Nolte and Mr. Ridge.

Furniture Gets A Ride.

Last week was moving time on the hill. Ben Miller moved to the Sippel property, Frank Storms to the house vacated by Miller, Isadore Popham moved into his house on Fifth street occupied by Philip Kramer, and Mr. Kramer moved to the Jeff Miller house. On the same street Eli Tait moved into Gilliland's house.

MR. WILLIAMS FINDS RELIEF

In Death--Was Blind Two Years. A Great, But Patient Sufferer--Leaves Wife And One Daughter.

FUNERAL HELD MONDAY.

Rousseau Williams died Sunday morning at 3:30 o'clock in this city after being an invalid for over two years. Mr. Williams was blind and his death was a great relief to him. He was a most patient sufferer and bore every pain without complaint.

Mr. Williams was born in Grayson county, near Leitchfield, October 2, 1882, and has spent the late years of his life in Cloverport. May 21, 1890, he married Miss Virginia B. Claycomb, who with one daughter, Mrs. Burt Daniels, survive. Besides the wife and daughter, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Nettie Lockhart and Mrs. Martin Leslie and one brother, Mr. Douglas Williams.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon from the Methodist church, conducted by Rev. Dillon. The interment took place in the Cloverport cemetery. Mr. Williams was a kind, unselfish man and everyone thought most highly of him. He was a member of the Methodist church.

The pall-bearers were: Julian Brown, A. R. Fisher, Frank Payne, J. C. Nolte, J. F. Sawyer, M. Weatherholt.

BAPTIST PREACHER

Will Move Here Next Week--Preaching Sunday Night--Congregation Rejoiced.

The Rev. Frank Farmer, of Owensboro, has been called to take charge of the Baptist pastorate in this city. The members are glad, indeed, to have a minister again, as they have without one since Rev. Lewis' departure. Preaching Sunday night.

The family will move in the parsonage next week.

Rev. Mr. Lewis Better.

The Rev. James T. Lewis, who has been very ill for several weeks at Fordsville, is improving, which is good news to his many friends in Cloverport.

FALLS INTO HOT WATER.

Little Willie Combs Dies From Horrible Accident at His Parents Home.

Willie Combs, the four-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Combs, fell in a kettle of hot water last Wednesday morning while playing in the kitchen at their home in the West End. The child was so badly scalded that he died Friday morning. He was a sweet little child, and his death was quite sad to his parents and sister, Cammie Combs.

The interment took place at Skillman.

Two Skiffs Stolen.

Jack Allen, of Tobinsport, had two skiffs stolen last week, and as yet has no clue of the thief.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

Lecturer Was Here Sunday--Elder T. S. Buckingham, Superintendent Doing Much Good.

Elder T. S. Buckingham, superintendent of Lexington District of the Anti-Saloon league of Kentucky, was here Sunday and delivered two good lectures on temperance at the Methodist and Baptist churches. He was given a hearty welcome in Cloverport and aroused a great deal of interest in the work here.

Will Speak To Farmers.

William Jennings Bryan will be one of the speakers at the national convention of farmers to be held in St. Louis May 3 to 7. A new political party may be launched during the convention, according to President Compters, of the American Federation of Labor.

"Let Well Enough Alone."

Forty-one indictments returned against city councilmen and politicians in Pittsburg; daily revelations tracing graft to prominent "statesmen" in the New York legislature; revolt in the house of representatives against the strongest personality in the republican party! Surely there is widespread disposition on the part of some people heretofore patient to a fault not to "let well enough alone."--The Commoner.

"CUPID AFRAID,"

Says Father Brey, of St. Rose Catholic Church--No Wedding Bells Since Lent.

Father Celestine Brey said Monday that Cupid was a little coward this spring, and was afraid to do any serious work on account of the high prices of living. Not since Lent has a marriage announcement been published in the St. Rose Catholic church, and this is unusual for springtime when young people's fancy turns to thoughts of love. Father Brey seems to be apprehensive of the bankrupt law and his young people must come to his rescue.

New Tobacco Factory at Owensboro.

A deal is being negotiated between J. A. Brown, claiming to be a representative of independent capitalists of New York, and M. A. Nelson, a tobacco man of Owensboro, Ky., by which an independent tobacco manufacturing plant will be established here. The tobacco plant of Mr. Nelson, valued at $10,000, is by the deal to be traded for $10,000 worth of new stock in the concern.--Farmers Journal.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for the great kindness and sympathy shown us during our late bereavement.

Mrs. A. Fallon and Children.

MARRY THURSDAY.

Mrs. Jesse Keys and Mr. Elmer Gabbert United in Marriage--Wedding at Patesville.

Mrs. Emma Keys was quietly married to Mr. Elmer Gabbert Thursday afternoon by the Rev. Mr. Powers at his home in Patesville.

Mrs. Keys was the wife of Jess Keys who was killed last spring. Mr. Gabbert had boarded with her for several months. Their marriage was not a surprise to their close friends.

April Showers.

The showers of rain that fell Sunday and Monday were most welcome after thirty-one dry and perfect days in March. The streets were as dusty as in the good old summer time and Mayor Barry was beset with requests to send out a water wagon. Many people complained that the ground was too dry for seed planting, but one woman said, "If you do your part, the Lord will do His," and she put in her garden patch in good faith and was rewarded with the rain.

Tennis Court Fine.

The court for the Tennis Club has just been finished on First and High streets in the East End. The members of the club are: Misses Burn, Bissess Willis, Misses Plank, Mrs. Phelps, Miss Severs and Miss Anne Jarboe.

RESIGNS

Rev. E. W. Graves Has Resigned the Irvington and Cloverport Churches.

The Rev. E. W. Graves has accepted the Presbyterian church at Auburn, Ky., and will move there some time in the near future.

He has been with the Irvington congregation seven years and the Cloverport Lucile Memorial four years and a half.

During his pastorate Rev. Graves has accomplished much. At Irvington a parsonage has been built, and a new lighting system and primary Sunday-school room have been added. At Cloverport $500 has been raised in paying for and completing the building.

Rev. Graves is greatly liked by his people here, and so is Mrs. Graves, who is a very delightful woman.

Have New Phaeton.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Henkle have recently gotten a handsome new phaeton.

Fisher Homestead Repaired.

The Fisher Homestead is being repaired and newly papered and painted for Mr. Frank Carter, who will marry a Louisville girl this month. The place will be exceedingly pretty when completed.

BILLS ENACTED BY LEGISLATURE

Complete List of Measures Passed by Kentucky Solons.

THOSE VETOED ALSO GIVEN

Large Majority of the Bills Do Not Become Laws Until Ninety Days After Adjournment of the Assembly—Some Few, With Emergency Clause Attached, Become Effective at Once.

Frankfort, Ky., (Special.)—The following is a complete list of all the bills that were enacted by the recent legislature and approved by the governor or allowed to become laws without his signature. A list of the bills vetoed by the governor is also given. Some few of these bills have an emergency clause attached to them and become effective at once, but the large majority of them do not become the law till 90 days after the adjournment of the legislature, which will be June 15, this year.

The governor vetoed 29 bills, but two of them were passed over his veto, these two being House Bills 51 and 347. It is believed this is the largest number of bills ever vetoed for any one session in the history of the state.

Senate Bills.

T. M. Mashieappars, every detail of his costume suggesting a longing for the clubs. His cap is in his hand and his hands with snatching distance. For the fraction of an instant he leans nonchalantly against the doorway.
"Well, my dear," he asks, "how shall we spend our half-holiday? Shall we motor or drive or walk? Because," he asks, "Mrs. T. Mashie is about to speak if you really don't care about these things, I will suggest an engagement to play golf at half past two and—by jove I must be off at once!"

The Word "Webosena."
The word "webosena" is an interesting survival of the far past. "Re-gone" here represents the past participle of the Anglo-Saxon verb "to begin," to go around about a word which otherwise entirely disappeared from our vocabulary, but which has its analogies in such verbs as "to begin" and "to go." In which the prefix "be" represents the modern preposition "by."

A webosena countenance is thus that of a man compassed about with woes, though perhaps it is most generally used in a somewhat slighting manner to imply that the appearance of grief is greater than the circumstances warrant. Thus it has partially undergone the same process of degeneration which has made "maudin tears"—original tears of penitence from Mary Magdalene—bear a contemptuous meaning—London Standard.

ONLY ONE. The Record in Cloverport Is a Unique One.

If the reader has a "bad back" or any kidney ailment and is looking for relief and cure, better depend on the only remedy endorsed by people you know. Doan's Kidney Pills relieve quickly—cure permanently. Cloverport citizens testify to this. Here is a case of it.

A. Fallon, Railroad St., Cloverport, Ky., says: "I can say that Doan's Kidney Pills live up to the claims made for them. My kidneys and bladder were disordered for twelve years. My back ached severely and when I stood or lifted, sharp twinges darted through my loins, causing me to suffer intensely. When I first arose in the morning I was lame and sore and the slightest work exhausted me. I was also languid and at times felt very nervous. Headaches and dizzy spells were added to my affliction and too frequent passages of the kidney secretions caused me great annoyance, particularly at night. I was often forced to rise from three to six times. I used one box of Doan's Kidney Pills procured at Fisher's Drug Store and received almost entire relief."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

No Game Like Baseball.
From Walter Camp's "The American National Game in the April Century."

There is no game that can steadily attract so many spectators during the entire course of its season as baseball. There is no sport that gives an opportunity for so many of our young boys to enjoy exciting, skillful and developing exercise. In fact, to put it concisely, there is no game so well adapted to the American boy and man.

WAITING FOR A WIFE.
One Man Who Thought Twenty Years Was a Starter.

"There's romance for you," said Little Blinks, putting aside his morning paper. "This paper has a story of a college professor who met a beautiful girl twenty years ago, fell in love with her at first sight and then lost sight of her altogether. Now, after waiting for twenty years, he is rewarded by learning that she is his bride. Just think of it, waiting twenty years for a wife!"

"What of it?" asked the genial philosopher. "There's nothing extraordinary about that. I've waited thirty-five years for mine."

"You? Waited thirty-five years? Why, then, you'd have been married that long!" said Little Blinks.

"I have," said the genial philosopher. "That's how I know how long I've waited. I've waited for her to get her gloves on about three years. I've waited for her to change her hat about four years. I've waited while she said just her last word to the cook for at least five years. I've waited upstairs, I've waited downstairs, I've waited at church, I've waited at the theater, and I have waited in cars, omnibuses, taxicabs, motorcars and the Lord knows what else besides. Fact is, Blinky, I've waited so long, so often and so regularly that I have come to know that little college professor of yours, with only one wait of twenty years, strikes me as a miserable little piker."

The Peace of Galilee
From Robert Glickson's "From Damascus to Nazareth" in the April Century

Next day we rode down to the sea of Galilee. Nothing else in Palestine touched me so much, nothing else seemed to me so intimately to relate the fragrance of the most beautiful spirit our world has known, as Galilee and its shores.

As I rode slowly, down to it over the hills covered with wild flowers and plants and grasses that lifted themselves almost to the knees of the horses. I felt at last, "This is indeed the Holy Land"—the land dreamed of by the Russian Pilgrim in the icy North, and the little Breton boy on the snow-scorched African upland; the land towards which hearts turn from the remotest parts of the earth, the unique land of promise and of fulfillment. The gesture of the Breton boy came back to my mind as he said, "I shall see the holy land" Surely in a mystic dream he had looked on Galilee. On those green waters, far below us, as still as a glass, green, heaped about by thickets of wild oleander and by myriads of unknown flowers, the miraculous feet had walked. It was as if the touch of those feet had given unto them peace forever—the marvelous peace at which I now was gazing.

Kentucky Women Succeeding in Newspaper Work

By A. Louise Babbage

Arthur Brisbane, the highest ranked newspaper man in America, who spoke before the Chicago's Woman's club in that city recently, said journalism is "the greatest thing in the world." Not even love did he hold as an exception. Simply because journalism itself is just a big bundle of love, and all that is not love in this magnificent profession is pitched into the waste basket. This has proven true in the careers of Kentucky women who are succeeding in newspaper work today.

Especially in the experiences of Mrs. Daisy Fitzhugh Ayers, a Kentuckian, now engaged in newspaper work at the national capital. She does more love than words as a correspondent for the seven largest papers in seven other states besides Kentucky. Mrs. Ayers has been on the staff of the Courier-Journal bureau in Washington since June and is connected with several New York publications. She is the author of "The Conquest," a novel of Washington life. Mrs. Ayers was reared in the newspaper home of Lexington and she has been writing ever since she was a school girl. She is the widow of a Yale honor man. Her parents are Capt. and Mrs. R. H. Fitzhugh, who came to the Bible, dress capital from Virginia.

Girls of the "Pennyville."
In Breckenridge county Miss Eva McGlothlin and Miss Mayme DeHaven are bright young women who are making more than 100 a month by corresponding for The Breckenridge News and The Fourth District Leader. Miss McGlothlin is correspondent for the News from Irvington and Miss DeHaven is representative for The Leader at Cloverport. They are paid well for their correspondence. Miss McGlothlin had never written for a newspaper before she took up the work for The News and the way she learned to write items may be helpful to the girl who wants to learn reporting. She clipped reports about fires, deaths and daily occurrences from different newspapers and by these she learned to write the news happenings of Irvington. Connected with The News is a most remarkable young girl, Miss Esther Jackson, who has been in The Breckenridge office nearly six years and she began work when she was fifteen years of age. When the local editor is on duty she does the writing and works with perfect ease, although her regular duties are confined to the printing department.

Writers of Central Kentucky.
At Lexington are five young women who have attained journalistic accomplishments and whose efforts have been remunerative. They are: Miss Mary B. Bryan, Miss Katherine Hill Billingsley, Mrs. May Bradley Bailey, Mrs. Donna Breckenridge and Miss Alice Loyd.

Miss Bryan is society editor for The Lexington Leader. She has been with that paper thirteen years and has never missed but two months from the office in that time. Miss Bryan is an enthusiastic club woman of Kentucky, belonging to the Lexington Chapter of the D. A. R., the Women's Club of Central Kentucky and the Filson Club of Louisville.

Miss Billingsley is society editor of the Courier-Journal. She is the daughter of the well-known lawyer, George E. Billingsley, who married Miss Nannie Davidson, daughter of one of the most successful bankers in the South.

Mrs. Bailey has been with Mrs. J. Tandy Hughes in a magazine agency and writes syndicated articles. She has written many charming articles and her travels abroad have added a particular interest to her writings.

Mrs. Deha Breckenridge, whose husband is editor of The Lexington Herald, is a most different and able woman, although in the last year she has devoted most of her time to federation work of forming school improvement leagues. She is chairman of the Lexington Chapter of the Kentucky League of Women's Clubs and has done some valuable work with The Herald's printers' ink. Mrs. Breckenridge is a granddaughter of Harrodsburg and inherits his oratorical powers. Before her marriage she was Miss Madeline McDowell.

Have Newspaper Relations.
Miss Katherine Euphemia Murrell is a talented young woman and represents The Louisville Times at Columbia. Miss Murrell is the niece of J. M. Murrell, who is in partnership with J. S. Harris in publishing and editing the paper Courier News. Her father, the late C. H. Murrell, was traveling representative for that paper ten years.

Ambitious young newspaper girls in New Haven are Miss Camilla Rappley and Miss Felicia Hagan, correspondents for the Louisville dailies. Miss Hagan is the niece of John A. Barry, editor of The New York Herald Tribune. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stella Moore, of Burlington, who for The Evening Bee, a splendid paper published by her brother, Paul Moore, one of the best known members of the Kentucky Press Association.

For fifteen years Mrs. Harry McCarty, of Nicholasville, who is associated with her husband, publisher of the Jessamine Journal, has been bookkeeper for McCarty & Company. Three years ago she began to write for the personal column of the Journal, and from that she has advanced to the editorial department.

Three Competent Girls.
Miss Betty L. Hubbard, of Hodgenville, and Miss Goldie Perry, of Winchester, are making good on two of the leading papers in the state. Besides writing well, they can operate a Linotype machine. Miss Perry works when she chooses and is "boss" of the Sun Sentinel. She has attended many meetings of the National Editorial Association with her father, R. R. Perry. Her paper on how to start a daily made a hit in both the state and national press meetings of last year. Miss Hubbard is in the office of The LaRue County Herald and is one of the loveliest girls known to the Kentucky editors. She is beautiful as well as talented.

Miss Lena Rollins, who has the distinction of being the only "mountain girl" in the Kentucky Press Association, and a delightful one, is secretary of The Sun Publishing Company. Miss Rollins is wise on the circulation end of the newspaper business. One system, she says that The Pineville Sun has increased its circulation by a handsome number is by writing personal letters to traveling men and former Belle county people, asking them for subscriptions to The Sun. The scheme is excellent in getting new subscribers.

Successful Journalists.
In Western Kentucky Mrs. Virginia Duncan has achieved a brilliant success in journalism on the editorial staff of The Owensboro Messenger. And for the last five years she has also been dramatic and music critic for The Enquirer. To hear Mrs. Duncan talk of journalism is indeed inspiring, for she is desperately in love with her work. She says the newspaper woman is a part of one of the most powerful forces of the world. The Fourth Estate.

Due to the best correspondents in Mercer county is Mrs. J. H. Westerfield. She is local editor at Perryville for the Kentucky Republican, published at Harrodsburg. Mrs. Westerfield's letters are always bright and interesting.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her

Knoxville, Iowa. "I suffered with pains low down in my right side for a year or more and was so weak and nervous that I could not do my work. I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, and am glad to say that your medicines and kind letters of direction have done more for me than anything else and I feel like a new woman here. I can do my work and rest well at night. I believe there is nothing like the Pinkham remedies."—Mrs. CLARA FRANKS, R. F. D., No. 3, Knoxville, Iowa.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been a standard remedy for female ills, and suffering women owe it to themselves to at least give this medicine a trial. Proof is abundant that it has cured thousands of others, and why should it not cure you?

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it is free and always helpful.

May Have Their Day.
"A Newspaper Woman's Day" has been suggested for the program of the mid-summer meeting of the Kentucky Press Association in June, which in all probability will be held at the Mammoth Cave. Dan Bowman, editor of the Woodford Sun, and secretary of the association, favors the idea, and no doubt, this will be one of the most attractive occasions of the forty-first annual gathering of the Kentucky editors.

The Kentucky newspaper women, as a whole, are the happiest and most cultured society in any state in the Union. May their ink bottles be full and running over with glory and honor forever!

From the Rev. Bates.
Mr. Babbage—Your excellent paper is read with care every week in our home. The last two numbers have made deeper impressions than usual. It seems startling that you should have another fine doing so much damage. It is refreshing to see how the citizens of the old town rise up and lend a hand to those who have suffered loss. Some of the buildings that burned were landmarks in my childhood, when I walked in with my brothers and sister, along what is now the pile, to attend school in the old Lloyd block where the Bank of Cloverport is now.

I wish through your columns to extend my congratulations to the congregation of Lucile Memorial church on the happy culmination of their efforts. We Presbyterians are famous advocates of the doctrine of the "Perseverance of the Saints." They have severely held on with marvelous determination. As a boy, I looked up to Col. D. R. Murray as embodying everything that was honorable and courageous in a gentleman. To him and his estimable wife the church owed its life in the early days of its existence. I thank you for the kind mention of me and my work in Marion. You are right in saying that I still claim Cloverport as my home. I trust the Easter time may bring much gladness to the hearts and homes of the town. Sincerely yours,

S. C. BATES,

Good To Be A Farmer

Squire Chas. H. Drury has about completed his fine new barn on his stock farm near Harrodsburg. Squire Drury is making quiet a fine success in the stock business. His horses and jacks and his thorough bred Duroc Jersey hogs are the finest in the country, while his stock of poultry can be beat. Things look good and prosperous around his place and to see them makes a fellow feel like he would like to be a farmer.

CLOVERPORT, KY., WEDNESDAY, APR. 6, 1910

Louis Landrum was offered the editorship of The Danville Messenger and the word that he has accepted it, speaks for the certain success of the new paper which has just been launched at Danville by The Messenger Printing Company with Hubert McGowan as president. Mr. Landrum's editorials in The Richmond Times during the last two years have attracted the attention of the press and public. What he is to do with a new pen, a new desk and new neighbors, will be watched with all eagerness. Danville should be very proud to have Louis Landrum at the head of a Democratic newspaper, and Mrs. Landrum in the social circles of their town.

We are glad to learn from the announcement made by Judge Moorman in this issue that he has decided to establish his law office permanently in Breckenridge—his home county. Emerson says: "If a man can be a better lawyer than any one else, make a better mouse trap than his neighbor, the world will make a beaten path to him, even though his den is in the woods." The opportunity for the young lawyer to make good is as great in the small town as in the large city, and Judge Moorman's friends are pleased that he will stay in Hardinsburg instead of going to Louisville.

Everything comes to the man who works and waits—this is true of Roscoe Severs, a former Breckenridge boy, who has been promoted by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company to the position of division engineer. Mr. Severs has stuck to his bush and has been working for this office twelve years. Mr. and Mrs. Severs, who have been living in Huntington, W. Va., will now go immediately to Hinton, where his headquarters will be.

James Tague took enough interest in Cloverport the other day to order a fire engine for the city council to examine, and it is now ready for inspection at the gas office in this city. Mr. Tague will, of course, if he should sell the machine, make a small commission and then let the town have it at the factory price. We sincerely trust that the councilmen will see wise to buy this, so we can have some protection from fire.

President Taft will speak Saturday in Washington in defense of his administration. It is a fact that Mr. Taft has not been popular in the councils of his party, and they fear that the next House of Representatives will be a Democratic body.

Commissioner of Agriculture M. C. Rankin has received crop reports from every county in the State. He says the prospects are for the largest acreage of tobacco ever planted in the State.

We extend our heartiest congratulations to the Hon. G. W. Beard and Mrs. Beard, who celebrated their diamond anniversary of their wedding in Hardinsburg last Thursday.

The good old State of Kentucky is now over a million dollars in debt, with the Republicans still in the saddle at Frankfort. What next?

Absence makes the heart grow fonder with us when it comes to spring poets.

Eighty-Eight Years Old.

B. W. Noel celebrated the eighty-eighth anniversary of his birthday last Thursday, March 31. Mr. Noel is a remarkably active man for his age. He has health, good eyesight and hearing. He has lived in and around Cloverport over fifty years, and has many friends here. He was born in Cloverport. Mrs. Noel is not so old as Mr. Noel, but she is as nice a woman as he is an old man.

Judge Moorman Permanently Located in Home County

Hardinsburg, Ky. April 5, 1910.

TO MY FRIENDS AND CLIENTS:

I have seen several notices in the Louisville papers, and others, to the effect that I will move to Louisville to practice law. It is true that I considered several propositions to do this, shortly after the expiration of my term as County Judge, and I was undecided as to whether I would remain here or go with a firm in that city. However, I have determined to practice my profession among my home people who have so highly honored me and whom I served faithfully and to the best of my ability in official capacity.

I have furnished offices in the Masonic building and will gladly welcome my friends and clients in my new quarters. I have often been asked as to my future. I take this means of correcting the erroneous impression that I am only temporarily located in Hardinsburg, or am undecided as to my near future.

CHAPTER VI.

INTO THE FOG AGAIN.

PRESENTLY she spoke, still playing softly.

"My father was an American, my mother Italian. But I have lived in Europe nearly all my life. There! You have more of my history than I intended telling you." The music went dreamily.

"I knew it! Who but an American woman would have the courage to do what you are doing tonight? Who but one of mine own countrywomen would trust me so wholly and accept me so frankly for what I am—an American gentleman?"

"Softly," she warred. "You will dig a pit for your vanity."

"No, I am an American gentleman, and I am proud of it, though this statement to your ears may have a school-boy ring."

"A nobility in this country? Impossible!"

"Not the kind you find in the Altmann of Götting. I speak of the nobility of the heart and the mind." He was very much in earnest now.

"Indeed!" The music stopped, and she turned. She regarded his earnestness with favor. He continued:

"I have traveled much. I have found nobility everywhere. In all climes, and also I have found beauty. Oh, I confess that my country is not wholly free from the best; but the best here is a least—stammer, discolored, outcast. On the other side, if he is mentioned in the Altmann, they give him smiles and decorations. And they credit me with being money mad! It is not true."

"But, if you are not money mad, why these great fortunes?"

"At a certain age a fortune in this country doubles itself without any effort on the part of the owner. Few of us marry for money, and when we do we at least have the consolation to keep the letter of our bargain."

"And when you marry?" she queried.

"Well, it is generally the woman we love. Dowries are not considered."

"There is no social law which forbids a dowryless girl to marry a dowryless man," laughing. "But over there it is always and eternally a business contract simply. You know that."

"Yes, a business contract," listlessly.

"But they talk of nobility on the other side. That is, they talk, talk—Italy, France, Germany! Why, I had rather be the son of an English farmer than a prince on the continent. And I had rather be who I am than the greatest nobleman in England."

"Go on, go on! I like it. What do you call it, then?" she laughed.

"Call it what you will. Look at the men we cultivate. Three or four hundred years ago Europe gave us great poets, great artists, great soldiers, great churchmen, great men. I admire a great racial when he is a Napoleon, a Talleyrand, a Machiavelli. But a petty one? We have no art, no music, no architecture, but we have a race of gentlemen. The old country is not becoming thin nowadays."

"Nobility, dignity is sacred," she mused.

"Nobility," thought Hillard.

"After you, Mr. Hillard," she said.

He bowed and passed on before her, but not till he had passed did he understand the maneuver. To follow her would have been nothing less than the temptation to pick at the strings of her mask. Would he have touched it? He could not say.

"That dinner? Was he in New York? Was it not Hazzard, the bottle and the glass? Had he ever, even in his most romantic dreams, expected to turn a page so charming, so enchanting or so dangerous to his peace of mind, a game of magical hide and seek?"

"And she? A whim, a fantastic, unaccountable whim—the whim of a woman seeking forgetfulness, not counting the cost nor caring, simply a whim."

On the little table was a Tuscany brass lamp of three wicks, fed by olive oil. It was sufficient to light the table, but the rest of the room was sunk in darkness. He half understood that there was a definite purpose in this semi-illumination. She had no wish that he should by chance recognize anything familiar in this house.

"May I ask you one question?" he asked.

"No," promptly. There was something in his eyes that made her grow wary of a sudden.

"Then I shall ask it. I shall not ask you if you are married."

"And I shall not say any way or the other."

She smiled, and he laughed quietly.

A running conversation, a fencing match with words and phrases; time after time she touched him, but with all his skill he could not break through her guard.

"And that interesting dissertation on the American gentleman?" she said listlessly.

"That's the trouble with posing as a moralist. One must live up to the precepts. Would you believe me if I told you that at the age of three and thirty I am still heart whole?"

She parried. "I trust you will and still that excellent record by making love to me."

She reached for the matches, touched off one, watched it burn for a moment, extinguished it, and then deliberately drew a line across the center of the tablecloth.

"Now, what might that represent?" he asked curiously.

"A line, Mr. Hillard. The moment you cross that line that moment you leave this house. On guard!"

"Come, that is not brave. You can retreat till your shoulders touch the wall, but I must stand this side of the line, unable to reach you. And you have the advantage of the mask besides. You are not a fair fighter."

"The odds should be in my favor. I am a woman. My wrist is not so strong as yours."

"Physically, of course, I may pass the line to reach the salt, for instance. Will that be against the rules? You have put temptation in my path."

"Bid Satan get behind thee."

"I wish I knew the color of your eyes. Behind those holes I see nothing but points of fire, no color."

"They are blue. But supposing I wear this mask because my face is dreadfully scarred?"

"Vindictively, yes; but scars, never. At least never so deep as you yourself can make. You wear that mask but out of mercy to me?"

Once she rose and approached the window, slyly raising the mask and breathing deeply of the cold air which rushed in through the crevices. When she turned she found he, too, had risen. He was looking at the stream of light which he held in his hand. Moreover, he returned and set the stain down beside his plate.

"Tell me, why do you do that?" There was an anxious note in her voice.

"I have no idea. But let us proceed with the dinner. This salad!"

"I am more interested in the idea." She pushed aside the salad and took a sip of the ruby burgundy. Had he discovered something?

"May I smoke?" he asked.

"By all means."

He lighted a cigarette and put the case near the line.

"Do you enjoy a cigarette?"

"Sometimes," she answered. "But the idea—"

"Will you not have one?" He moved the case still nearer to the line.

She reached out a firm round white arm.

"One moment," he said. "Let us understand each other thoroughly."

"What do you mean?" her arm pointed in midair.

"To touch a cigarette you must cross the line to this side."

She withdrew her arm slowly.

Nurse Says:

"I know what is good for young and old people," writes Mrs. Clara Dykstra, a trained nurse in South-Bellingham, Wash., "and will say that I consider Cardui the best medicine for girls and women. It makes them feel like new persons, relieves their pain and regulates womanly troubles. 'Both my daughter and I received great benefit.'"

E. 51
Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

As a medicine for female trouble, no medicine you can get has the old established reputation, that Cardui has.

Fifty (50) years of success prove that it has stood the greatest of all tests—the test of TIME.

As a tonic for weak women, Cardui is the best, because it is a woman's tonic. Pure, gentle, safe, reliable. Try Cardui.

"I shall not smoke. If I crossed the line I should establish a dangerous precedent. And I must have that idea."

"The mirror over the piano commands me. I have seen it somewhere before. Then there is that old copy of Botticelli. The frame is familiar, but I could not place it. This stain, however!" He laughed. The laughter was boyish, even triumphant.

"Well, that stain?" She was now leaning across the table, her fingers tense on the cloth.

"I bought that stain two seasons ago. This is the Simmonds' place, and you are the velvet lady who has been rifling Mrs. Kandorf's favorite hunter in the park."

"They stood up simultaneously. In a matter of this sort he was by far the quicker. In an instant he had caught her by the wrist, at the same time drawing her irresistibly round the table toward him."

"I must see your face. I shall never be at peace if I do not."

"Certainly you will never know any peace if you do. Be careful!"

His free hand stole toward the strings of her mask. She moved not. His face was very close to hers now.

If only she would struggle! He released her wrist.

"No, I haven't the courage. If I take that mask from your face it will be the end. And I do not want this ever to end. If you will let me see your face of your own free will, so be it. I shall see it some day, mark me. Fate does not cross two paths in this manner without a purpose." He stepped back slowly. "You do not understand the lure of that mask."

"Perhaps I do. I am beginning to admire your self-control, Mr. Hillard. But I am tired now, and I must ask you to go."

"Once more, will you let me see your face?"

"No. If, as you say, fate intends for us to meet again you will see it. But I have my doubts. So it is my will to kiss out of your face as completely as though I had never entered it—from one for into another. No, I am not a happy woman. I am not lumpy in my friendships. Let me go, and let me go. Let me appear to your imagination. This light adventure shall be a souvenir for your old age. The night romance stepped into your life and out of it. Think! There will always be the same charm, the same mystery, the same enchantment. I shall always be Cinderella or the sleeping beauty or what your fancy wills. Do you understand me?"

"Nothing," she proceeded, "nothing has so long in the recollection as a pleasant mystery—in other days, other times. Well, on my side I shall recall this night pleasantly. Without knowing it you have given me a new foothold in life. I did not believe that there lived a single man who could keep to the letter of his bargain. Good night! And do not lean out of any more windows," she added lightly.

"You are right," he said reluctantly. "Something to dream over in my old age. And certainly I shall dream of it—a flash of sunlight in the window!"

Then slowly he reached down toward her waistline. She understood his purpose and essayed to stop him.

"Do not deny me this little thing," he said.

She let her hand fall. He took the glass, held it against the light to see where her lips had touched it. Carefully he poured out the wine from the opposite side and kissed the rim.

"I shall keep this glass. I must have some visible object to make sure that this hasn't been a dream."

"You may kiss my hand, Mr. Hillard."

He bent quickly and kissed not the hand, but the wrist where the marks of his fingers still remained faintly. He squared himself and gazed long and steadily into her eyes. There was a flutter in her heart that she was unable to define. On his part he realized the sooner he was gone the better. There was a limit to his self-control. He gained the street somehow. There he stopped and turned.

Did the curtain move? He wasn't sure, but he raised his hat, settled it firmly on his head and walked rapidly away.

There was little sleep for him that night, and in the morning the first thing he did was to pick up the wine-glass. It was all true. And then his good resolutions melted and vanished. He must have one more word with her, happen what might. So at 10 o'clock he called a cab and drove rapidly to the Sandford place. Snow had fallen during the night, and many of the steps were still spotted white. Impossible! He leaped from the cab and rubbed his eyes. Absolutely impossible! For what did he see? Wooden shutters over all the lower windows and the iron gates closed before the doors! And not a footprint anywhere. This was extraordinary. He jumped from the cab, ran up the steps and rang the bell—rang it ten times with minute intervals. And no one answered. Then he heard a call from across the street. A man stood in one of the doorways.

"Be careful!"

"Nobody home!" he shouted. "Gone to Egypt."

"But there was some one here last night!" Hillard shouted back.

"Dreaming. That house has been empty since November. I happen to be the caretaker."

Hillard went back to his cab dazed. No one there last night? Come, come; there was a mistake somewhere. He would soon find out whether or not he had dined there the night before.

"A cable office?" he cried to the caddy. "Hurry!"

Once there he telephoned downtown and secured Sandford's calling number. Then he filled out a blank, which cost him $10. Late that night at the club he received his reply. It was terse—

"You are crazy. House absolutely empty SANDFORD."

HUNTING THE WALRUS.

Daring of the Eskimos and Their Work With the Harpoon.

With the harpoon as a weapon the hunters left the solid ice to sprang lightly from one small piece to another until a pan large enough to hold them was reached. For out in the open lake. The pieces over which the passage was made were often so small that they would have sunk under a man's weight had he faltered or hesitated upon them for a moment. It seemed to me that the Eskimos were absolutely reckless in this passage over the broken pieces and took no account of the manner in which they should return. Certainly only a fearless man with a clear eye and nerves of iron could accomplish it.

A large, safe pan once attained well in the midst of the blowing walrus, a stand was taken near its edge, where, with harpoon poised, the hunter waited until a walrus came within striking distance. Then the lightning the weapon was sunk deep into the animal's body, and as quick as a flash the harpoon shaft protruded with a heavy point of iron was driven firmly into the ice and several turns of line taken around it and held fast to the Eskimo. This strong line held the walrus in spite of its struggles to free itself, and not an inch was surrendered to it by the Eskimo. As the walrus gradually tired the line was tightened little by little until finally the great animal was well alongside the pan, when it was quickly dispatched with a lance.—Harry Whitney in Outhing.

THE CITY COUNCIL

Met at its Regular Monthly Meeting Monday Night—Mayor Barry Presiding.

A petition signed by a number of citizens was presented and read objecting to the Standard Oil Company erecting a gasoline tank on its property near the depot. The petition was laid on the table.

An attempt was made by Mayor Barry to get a hog ordinance passed, or the one now existing amended, so as to cut out the hog pens in certain distance of the resident section, but it was rejected by the council.

The question of building water works for the city came up, and was discussed pro and con by the members. They finally concluded that they were not in financial shape just yet to build or construct water works, so that matter was passed.

They however agreed to take up a proposition from Evansville parties who had proposed to furnish a gasoline engine and hose, sufficient to protect the town from fire, at a nominal cost. A committee of six was appointed to go to Evansville and inspect this fire apparatus, and report at the next meeting.

The expenses of this committee will be borne by the firm proposing to furnish the apparatus, and there will be no expense to the town for this work, whether the engine is purchased or not. Some of the councilmen did not put much faith in the proposition, but in as much as they had been requested to go and inspect the machine at the cost of those who proposed to furnish it to the town, they decided to do so. Those appointed on the committee were: Henry Yeager, Charles Hook, Henry Sadler, P. D. Plank, Will Pale and Wick McEwen.

Several claims were allowed and the meeting adjourned.

Mrs. JOHN HOPP, Webster Ave., Glendale, L. I., N. Y., writes: "I have been suffering for the past ten years with many symptoms attendant to my age, also catarrh and indigestion. I was weak and discouraged, had no ambition, could not sleep at night, and lost greatly in weight."

"I tried other remedies, but with no success, until I commenced to take Peruna. I have felt better in every respect, can sleep well, and have gained in weight. I cannot praise Peruna highly enough for the good it has done me."

"If any women are suffering as I did, I would advise them to try Peruna and convince themselves. Peruna has done me good. I know by my experience that it is worth its weight in gold to any one who needs it."

"I also took Massalin, for constipation, in connection with Peruna, and I found it helped me where other laxatives failed."

Mildred Fontaine McGuffin.

Mrs. Mildred Fontaine McGuffin died of blood poisoning at St. Anthony's Hospital in Louisville, at 7:50 o'clock Friday night. She was the wife of Wilbur McGuffin, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Fontaine.

Mrs. McGuffin was just nineteen years of age, and with her husband she leaves a tiny baby about four weeks old, and one little adopted son.

The funeral was held from the home in Louisville Sunday afternoon, and the interment took place in the Cave Hill cemetery. Mrs. Emma Skillman, of this place, attended the funeral. The news of the death was a great shock to the young mother's friends in Cloverport, where she had frequently visited in her childhood. She was a dear, sweet girl, and her death seemed most untimely.

Description and Pedigree

BOURKE COCHRAN is a blood bay stallion, foaled in April, 1902; right hind foot white. Sire Chester Dare No. 10, Grand Sire Black Squirrel No. 58; Dam Maybel Denmark No. 2019 by Denmark Chief J. B. No. 682; 2nd Dam by Coleman's Eureka, F. S.; 3rd Dam by Brinker's Drennon No. 1600. Bourke Cochran is 15 1/2 hands high, weight 1150 pounds, beautiful head and neck, the best back you ever saw on a horse; good legs, without a blemish; fine mane and tail and carries tail well, never needs a piece of ginger. This horse is absolutely in a class to himself, standard and registered. He goes all the gaits fast and right. In a square trot he has shown better than a four minute gait. His gaits are natural, not acquired. While Bourke Cochran is but a youngster, he has made a reputation that would be a credit to any living stallion as a show horse, having been shown the past two seasons at all the leading fairs of the State and never beaten but once. Won the combined saddle and harness sweepstake at the LaRue County Fair, 1909. You must see him to appreciate his greatness, and we kindly invite our friends and patrons to call and inspect him.

This horse will be found at my stable one mile east of Bewleyville, on Louisville road, and will be permitted to serve mares at $20 for colts that stand up and suck.
